PEER FEEDBACK

INSIGHT:

During the Insight Phase, internal motivation is more evident. The student and her family are able to verbalize personal insights into what they do and why they do it. They are aware of ego-defense mechanisms and their destructive nature. The student and her family display a willingness to be open and honest, and are working to restore trust. Relationships with others become key in learning about self.

On Insight Phase the student understands:

- understands the need to follow the rules without complaint and without staff direction
- understands doing chores well and without complaint is important
- understands benefit of being open in therapy
- understands benefit of participating & learning in school & groups
- understands her treatment issues and her responsibility in them
- understands and sees inappropriate behavior without justifying it
- understands the benefit of being honest with staff and peers
- understands how to give feedback respectfully and accept it non-defensively to all people including her family
- understands that making choices that match her values is necessary
- understands the difference between external & internal motivation
- understands how harmful gossip can be
